

Registration Hints Crowd Due at Meet

BOISE, Oct. 8.—Advance registration from all sections of Idaho indicate heavy attendance at the governor's safety conference to be held here Oct. 31-Nov. 1, according to Fred A. Robinson, director of the conference committee. Sessions will be held in Hotel Boise, beginning at 9:30 a.m. in Oct. 31.

All sessions are open to the public, and the public is invited to participate, according to Robinson, for audience participation in the panel sessions.

The conference has been called by Gov. Robert E. Bryan to permit Gov. and Mrs. Idaho to become familiar with the growing need for safety precautions in industry, on the streets and highways, in the home, and in agriculture, and to firsthand from leaders in the field of safety programming and education of the progress being made, according to Robinson.

The conference is a cooperation given by representatives of agricultural, employer and employee organizations in the development of industrial safety programs.

Gov. Bryan will keynote the conference in the opening address at the morning session on Oct. 31, followed by Paul E. Gunke, former member of the state board of accident prevention and now director of the bureau of labor standards, U. S. department of labor, to whom both are appointed by Governor Bryan.

Gunke will speak on "The moral and economic effects of industrial accidents," and will be followed by Ray Ashworth, president of the Northwest university, on the subject, "There is need for more rigid controls to reduce traffic accidents."

Col. W. E. Johnson, corps of engineers, U. S. Army, and headquarters at Seattle, will be the guest speaker at the noon luncheon to be held in the crystal ballroom of the Hotel Boise.

Three panel sessions will be held simultaneously during the afternoon with Wilson and delegates to discuss the various aspects of their interest, it is according to Robinson.

The panel on "Industrial Accidents" is moderated by Don T. Johnson, president of the Idaho Federation of the C. V. Beard atomic energy commission, Idaho Falls; Ralph W. Neyman, general manager, Western Bell telephone company; and Ed Bowes, director of safety, department of labor leaders, and George Brown, Oregon Industrial Union, president.

The "Traffic Accidents" panel will be moderated by Earle E. Koehler, commissioner of law enforcement, state of Idaho, and Probate Judge Allen G. Smith, Twin Falls.

The "Safety in the Home" panel will be moderated by Earle E. Koehler, commissioner of law enforcement, state of Idaho, and Probate Judge Allen G. Smith, Twin Falls.

Professional Adjustment Bureau filed suit against W. E. Adams, master of the Idaho State Guards, as moderator, will have as speakers William E. Johnson, professor of psychology at Boise Junior college, J. W. Stevens, National Board of Fire Underwriters, San Francisco; State Rep. H. E. Smith of Utah, and Mrs. Leon D. Caldwell, extension service of the University of Idaho.

Couple
Budget
Really Works

ANGELA, Tex., Oct. 8 (UPI)—A housewife decided to cut a quarter of milk and meat from her diet to help her family. "It's a real luxury" she said. "I'm saving $100 a month." Dick Myre set up a booth for the couple on the front porch of their house on Thursday. Thursday is the day he could do it best and save the extra time.

"I find anything I thought I wanted cost me the money," she said.

She has cut meat and the changed her mind and cut a square 25 cents for a meal.

"I'm going to buy meat all I'm going to buy meat for myself," she said.

"We had to go so far and neither of us had a pound," she said.

Myre, wife of the aluminum worker, has been here for eight 108 and her husband started the economy

gardening—"that's what he figured a couple could minimally on a minimum of the $100 a month," he said.

Friday the couple had bacon, beans and coffee.

For a dinner salad and the wife had beef stew with

potatoes and banana

pudding for dessert.

The breakfast menu calls

bacon, grapefruit juice, coffee. Lunch was

ice cream, raspberries,

Coming Population Won't Get Priceless Boon: Living Room

ROBERT MUSSEL

LONDON, Oct. 8 (UPI)—Don't you just love the button world of unlimited leisure which science is fashioning for them. You and I and our fathers and mothers have been given a precious, irreplaceable advantage which can never be theirs: Room.

Room to breathe in, room to stand, room to move out, vast areas still lying broad and green on the earth.

But not for long.

Don't you attend a couple of scientific congresses, done a lot of traveling, spoken to a lot of people, seen a lot of things from middle-class to high-class? Kids! There are millions and millions of them. You see them everywhere. In numbers never before known on earth. And you care about them, and worry about them, too. So many new mouths—100,000 every day including Sundays—to be fed.

Well, since heads than mine are

Report Given On Education Before Lions

BURLEY, Oct. 8 — Burley Lions heard Mrs. Charlie Turbine and Reed Starley, chairman of the local school board, report on the govern- ment's educational program in Boise recently at their noon luncheon Friday. Starley pointed out that Idaho's students rank 16th in a comparative analysis made by the National Education Association. He said, in view of the salary range Idaho teachers receive, this was a very good record.

He also reported on the progress of the current building program. He said it appears that the new high school will be completed in time for occupancy shortly after Jan. 1.

Next Friday Jack Russell, Jerome district governor, will meet with the local Lions to discuss his program.

"The primary requisite of a marine is pride in his country," the sergeant continued. "The marine corps has had many die of pride in the rightness of the American way of life and faith in the invincibility of the marine corps. Recruits who have shown their contempt for American ideals are not wanted."

Hints to Redecorate House Give One Husband Big Pain

By HENRY McLEMORE

Among the magazines which come to our home each month are several which invariably include a section devoted to pointing out to a woman what is wrong with her home and how she can improve it.

These sections are mischief-makers, and I have come to the conclusion that they are not only useless but positively harmful.

For a reason I'll never know, this disappearance is called arranging.

These monthly game usually starts with Mary saying something like

"Now just sit there. Don't move, and don't get sore. I am going to move the sofa from its side to the other side of the room."

After this, Mary says, "I am going to move my chair and not lend a stronger back. Then she moves three or four more chairs, until there is only one left, and then she says, 'Now you know what it is, and what I have to do with it.'

Then all the lamps have to be unfastened and swivelled, and the curtains have to be shifted, and after that it's turn of the coffee table and end tables to get the same treatment.

But these magazines edit this make it a new location. There is always the same remark.

"There, now! Don't that look a lot better?" And I wonder why I didn't think of arranging things this way in the first place.

A month later, as certain as the moon, there's another reshuffle.

We rent, otherwise the house wouldn't look the same. Women love to do this, and when she does it, she doesn't have good taste, which is why she wouldn't like it. But let

a decorator a thousand miles away

do so.

Mary is a trustee. This is odd, too.

She is a trustee. She likes to do it herself. She likes to make herself look good.

She doesn't have good taste, which is why she wouldn't like it. But let

a decorator a thousand miles away

do so.

"Russia's Willing to Sell You Some Arms"*Space Curves Do Exist, Test Verifies Them

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (UPI)—A world of new possibilities opens up to man of the future. Don't let those space curves scare you; you can take 'em safely with all rocket blasting.

That doesn't mean they don't exist. It means they do exist in the Einsteinian relativistic sense.

That is today's word from the U.S. naval observatory here where staff scientists have worked out new verification of the theory of relativity. Einstein's space curvatures theories.

These confirmations, painstakingly calculated over a period of years, are based on oddities in the orbits of Mars and the planets Mars and Venus.

Old-fashioned notions of gravitation force—the force that Newton credited with keeping the planets in their orbits around the sun—do not explain these oddities.

Einstein's general theory of relativity, now 40 years old, does explain them if you can bring your mind to think of space as a complicated something instead of mere boundaries nothing.

In trying to figure out the moving parts of the universe, they do Einstein found it necessary to think of gravitation in a new way.

As Dr. Gerald M. Clemence, director of the U.S. Naval Observatory, put it: "Einstein concluded that gravitation must be viewed not as a force at all but simply as part of the geometry of the universe."

Considered as a force, the gravitational influence of the other planets could not explain certain peculiarities in the orbits of the sun, Mercury's orbit is not fixed in space; it slowly rotates.

Einstein stipulated this in part to account for the planets' efforts to align the track in a space that itself is curved. His predictions about Mercury's orbit have long since been verified by the work of the National Observatory and his colleagues have added the orbits of earth, Mars and Venus to the confirmation list.

Clemence spent 15 years on the problem, consulting with colleagues who showed that the predictions of Mars obeyed what might be called relativity law. He didn't doubt it.

Venus to the confirmation list. Clemence spent 15 years on the problem, consulting with colleagues who showed that the predictions of Mars obeyed what might be called relativity law. He didn't doubt it.

Now, just to verify his figures, Clemence and his assistants are feeding the problem to a plant electronic brain, the Naval Observatory's electronic computer (NOROO) at the navy's Dahlgren, Va., proving ground.

Once NOROO gets going it can verify in just 20 minutes actual results of the competition Clemence began laboring on 15 years ago.

Issues Taken With Ike Bid For "Sports"

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (UPI)—A committee of children's doctors has issued a statement in connection with President Eisenhower's recent call for more emphasis on competitive sports as a means of improving physical fitness.

Two members of the committee told reporters that they did not know "exactly what the President had in mind" but that the statement was "told to us in detail in detail accounts."

"It is open to be interpreted as condoning high pressure competition for children," said Dr. John D. C. Gandy, a pediatrician.

The doctors' statement said:

"Some recreational leaders could just run away with a statement like that and figure that everything should be highly organized, high pressure competition." Drs. J. L. Heiters, of Chicago, chairman, and D. C. Gandy, of St. Louis, members of the committee on school health of the American Academy of Pediatrics, said.

Heiters said he did not believe that the President had in mind, but rather something along the lines of a program for family fitness.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

There's nothing that serves much better than a nice long bus ride for strangers to aquaint. Twenty women from Magic Valley went to Salt Lake City to a Relief Society conference last week and when they boarded the bus there weren't more than seven or eight who were acquainted with one another. By the time they returned two days later, everything from birthdays to number of children and recipes had been exchanged.

Of the facts assembled, the 20 women had 11 children and are incarcerated in the cabin.

Police Chief T. M. Kendrick told the city council recently that he had been asked to keep the bus.

Families comprised the chief topic of discussion.

Children of members of the group were serving in six mission districts for the LDS church, including Denver, the western states, Canada, Spanish American, San Diego and Nebraska.

Sons of the women were listed as serving in the military forces in Germany, Arizona, Japan and Korea and other children were reported at the Brigham Young university, the University of Idaho, college, the University of Utah, the University of Idaho and Rich college, Rexburg. The children of the women ranged in age from 3 to 65 years and the women's ages ran from 32 to 65 years of age.

The family information exchange was a success, the women said.

Women in the group included Mrs. GANNETT, and Mrs. John Thorpe, SHOSHONE, with eight each. Mrs. Thorpe was the only great-grandmother present.

Other women who took the trip were Mrs. Hazel Stevens, Mrs. Lois Bean, Mrs. Vilas Glavin, Mrs. Pearl Edwards, Mrs. Anna Johnson, Twin Falls; Mrs. Norna Marchant, Mrs. Verle Wrigley, Mrs. Olave Banner, Mrs. Mildred Waters, Mrs. Anna Clark and Mrs. Blanch Bray, all Burley.

From Idaho state, in addition to those listed, were Mrs. Burton Thompson, Mrs. Alice Pritchard, F. N. Stowell and Mrs. Harold Thorne.

The women are state board members of the Twin Falls chapter and Bainebridge of the LDS church and attended the conference at Salt Lake City in keeping with that line of work.
